

PEACE PARLEY AT PRESIDENT'S HOME

Admiral Yamamoto and Ambassador Aoki Pay a Visit to Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill

DESIGNED TO ALLAY FEARS OF A CONFLICT

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 12.—The highest official courtesy that can be extended Admiral Baron Yamamoto during his visit to the United States took place today, when President Roosevelt entertained the Japanese admiral as his guest of honor at a luncheon served at 1 o'clock at Sagamore Hill. Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador to this country, and personal representative of the Japanese emperor, shared in the cordially extended to the Japanese nation, as did Captain Moto Kondo, inspector of naval construction of the Japanese navy and a member of Admiral Yamamoto's suite. Assisting the president and Mrs. Roosevelt in entertaining the distinguished visitors were Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, Representative Herbert Parsons, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Morgan, also of New York. Guests arrived at Oyster Bay shortly after noon and were conveyed at once to Sagamore Hill in the Roosevelt automobile.

The Japanese members of the president's luncheon party occupied a special car in their trip from New York to Oyster Bay. Captain Kondo was the bearer of a package which he said was a present for President Roosevelt.

IS A PEACE CONFERENCE.

Visit of Japanese to President is important.

New York, July 12.—A peace conference of hardly less importance to the United States and Japan than that now in session at The Hague, was held at Oyster Bay today, when Admiral Yamamoto, of Japan, and Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, arrived there for an official visit of respect to the president. Both of the distinguished Japanese having taken advantage of all opportunities to make public declarations of the peaceful and friendly intentions of their native country, it was expected that the tone of their conference with the president would partake of the same pacific character.

Before his departure, Captain Kondo, of Admiral Yamamoto's suite, said that the admiral was greatly pleased by the cordiality shown him at the

HAYWOOD RESUMES HIS STORY ON STAND

Principal in Boise Trial Denies He Knew of the Steunenberg Plot.

Boise, Idaho, July 12.—Testifying in his own behalf William D. Haywood denied that he planned, conspired in, or desired the murder of former Governor Steunenberg. The prisoner witness emphasized his declaration of innocence, when in well measured words and even tone he said, "I do not believe I ever thought of Steunenberg after I left Idaho."

The direct examination of the defendant took up the first hour and a half of the morning session. Clarence Darrow led his client carefully over the ground covered by Orchard and at every charge that Haywood had any connection with Orchard other than what was of the most innocent character or with any criminal act, the witness in the most positive terms.

Senator Borah took Haywood in hand for cross-examination for the last hour of the session. The witness changed his position in the witness chair and faced the prosecutor's table. He gave no sign of nervousness. Leaning back with one arm flung over the back of his chair, after the first question, he looked up at Judge Wood and said:

"Your honor, may I have the shutters of that window closed? The glare is strong and I cannot see the senator's eyes."

Haywood gave careful explanations of the workings of the Western Federation of Miners, its policy and attitude towards employers of labor.

At the conclusion of the morning session Senator Borah announced that he would conclude his cross-examination today.

THE DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Boise, Idaho, July 12.—Dominick Flynn, one of the defense witnesses in the Haywood trial, was recalled by the state when the case opened this morning at 9 o'clock. He was asked as to a conversation he had with Daniel Ganey at Mullen, Idaho, in 1899. The questions were evidently for the purpose of impeachment. After Flynn left the stand Haywood was recalled and the direct examination was continued.

Haywood said that Orchard had been at his house three or four times. Most of the members of the union, when they were in Denver, called at his home, the witness declared.

"Did you ever call on Orchard?" asked Mr. Darrow.

"No, sir; never."

"Did you ever have anything to do with buying a horse and buggy for Orchard to go out on killing expeditions with?"

"No, sir; never."

Wanted to Trade Horses.

Haywood said Orchard came one day to headquarters in a buggy with a colored man and said George Pettibone wanted to know if he could trade the rig for a gray mare which the federation owned—one of the nineteen horses which had been used in distributing relief in the Cripple Creek district. Pettibone was anxious to get the mare for one of his delivery wagons.

The witness denied severally and positively that he had talked to Orchard or planned with him the killing of Sherman Bell, Governor Peabody, James Hearn, David Moffat or Judges

OPEN ATTACK MADE ON GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE

St. Petersburg Newspaper Says Ambassador Bom- pard Butts In.

St. Petersburg, Russia, July 12.—An open attack on the French government and Ambassador Bompard appeared today in the Novoe Vremya, which a week ago began reviewing and tentatively condemning the Franco-Russian alliance. It is supposed that the paper in this instance is serving as the mouth-piece of the powerful court party, which is working in favor of closer relations with Germany. The editorial is couched in impenetrable and offensive language, and seriously compromises the position of M. Bompard at St. Petersburg. It says:

"Tactless to the point of impudence has been the behavior of the ambassador in urging unasked advice on Russian internal affairs on which he is a perfect ignorant. The French government has also treated official Russia strangely, almost hostilely. The French official press and the official utterances in the chamber of deputies have indicated all along that France was anxious to engage in negotiations with the new-born donna over the head or behind the back of the government. Such insincerity and double dealing is calculated to give open encouragement to the Russian revolutionists, who claim that France is more attentive to their voice than to the voice of the recognized and responsible representatives of the Russian empire."

Simultaneously the Novoe Vremya bitterly complains of the confusion and incapacity of Russian diplomacy, pointing to the failure of Foreign Minister Tsvetkov to bring about re-establishment of Russian prestige.

BLUM IS SUPERINTENDENT.

Dave Blum, for several years a member of the police department and night driver of the patrol wagon for five years before his resignation two weeks ago, has been appointed superintendent of Brookside farm.

He was raised on a farm in St. Joe township and is regarded as fully equipped for the duties of his new position.

MURDER OVER A CARD GAME.

Little Affair With Mortality Suffix Down in the Feud Belt.

Jackson, Ky., July 12.—Curt Smith, brother of John Smith, the noted feudist, was shot and killed last night by Sigel Turner, in a duel over a card game.

Smith is alleged to have fired twice at Turner before the latter killed him. Smith was an important witness for the commonwealth against Judge James Hearn, and his associates in the mountain feud cases. Turner surrendered today to the officers here.

UNWRITTEN LAW IN GOOD STANDING THERE

Maryland Woman Who Killed Daughter's Be- trayer Acquitted.

Laplata, Md., July 12.—Mrs. Bowie and her son, Henry, who have been on trial here charged with the murder of Hubert Posey, last January, were acquitted by the jury today in little more than an hour after the twelve men had retired. The jury reached a verdict in five minutes after being locked up. It is claimed that Posey betrayed Mrs. Bowie's daughter and then refused to keep his promise to marry her.

The case was given to the jury at 12:35 p. m. and the verdict of acquittal was returned at 1:05. While the verdict was reached immediately after the jury retired an hour elapsed before it was returned owing to the court having taken a recess.

State Ready for Compromise.

States Attorney Wilmer's statement last evening that the prosecution would be satisfied with a verdict of manslaughter was a surprise, and was met by the demand of former State Senator Posey, for the defense, that the jury either acquit or find the accused guilty of murder.

Touching the unwritten law, Congressman Mudd said, "the family in this land of ours is the nucleus and the nursery of the chastity of women, the development and maintenance of a salutary and exalted respect for the honor of the mother, the sister and the daughter becomes, therefore, a natural and essential feature of the law in this land. In nearly every state of this country there will be found an exemplification and recognition of this fact, and an adoption of this doctrine. It is in this sense that I confidently claim the protection of what I have called the 'unwritten law' as an adequate defense for these defendants."

Mother's Story of Killing.

On the witness stand yesterday Mrs. Bowie admitted the killing of Posey and told why the deed was committed.

Her daughter, Priscilla Bowie, carrying the infant of which the man slain was the father, also took the stand and related the events leading up to the tragedy. Her narrative moved many in the courtroom to tears.

The sole defense of mother and son is that they were justified in killing Posey under the "unwritten law."

Mrs. Bowie, who preceded her daughter on the witness chair, without hesitancy declared that she and her son fired the shots, one of which ended Posey's life.

Young Posey, she said, had been engaged to her daughter for four years. She declared she heard Posey promise to marry her after her condition had been revealed, and last Thanksgiving day was the time set for the wedding, but Posey did not appear.

Mother Tells of Tragedy.

She then told the story of the meeting with Posey on the day of the shooting.

"We went up the road to meet him to talk to him," she said, "and to advise him to come and marry 'Sis.'"

She related how she first pleaded with Posey to repair the wrong she alleged he had done her daughter, even offering to pay all the expenses, her son adding that if he wanted to

WAS STRUCK BY ANOTHER

G. J. Wells, Traction Em- ploye, Very Painfully Injured.

G. J. Wells, 19 years of age, employed in the car barns of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company, was seriously injured at Wayne and Calhoun streets at 8 o'clock this morning, when in leaning from a southbound interurban car he was struck by a South Wayne car approaching from the opposite direction.

Wells was at first believed to be dangerously injured. He was suffering from concussion of the brain and was removed to Hope hospital, where he later showed considerable improvement and physicians say the case now has a more favorable outlook.

Wells' home is at Garrett, where his father, Robert Wells, is a conductor on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The young man came to Fort Wayne about six months ago, and has been boarding at 919 Lafayette street.

The accident was a peculiar one. Wells had accompanied his shop foreman, Noble Graham, to the interurban station to take a Bluffton interurban car to the shops, and it was while

TAKE THE DOLLAR MARK OFF OF SECURITIES SAYS SHEPARD

Brooklyn Man Uncovers a Scheme to Correct Abuses.

Galesburg, Ill., July 12.—An address by Edward M. Shepard, of New York, on "Corporate Capitalization and Public Morals," was the feature of today's session of the annual meeting of the Illinois State Bar association.

The abolition of the purely nominal money capitalization of business corporations as a cure for the evils of over-capitalization was set forth by Mr. Shepard. The removal of the dollar mark from capital stock will, he believes, go far toward solving the problem.

"It is the falsity of the present plan of corporate capitalization, which should condemn it," he said. "For the very reason that it facilitates deceit, the delusion of investors and insincere dealing with public sentiment or public officers, it should be ended, if there be a better plan. I think there is. I propose that the share of stock shall have no dollar mark; that its only essential feature shall be the truthful certificate that it is one of a given total number of equal shares, into which the enterprise is divided."

Mr. Shepard also spoke of the common idea that the profits of the railroads and other public service corporations should be restricted to six per cent. This, in his opinion, is a fallacy, and if so restricted would prevent industrial advancement.

"Private capital will not go into new and untried enterprises unless on a promise that, in case of success, the profits shall exceed the rate of interest which could be earned on assured investments," he said.

BIG FINES AND JAIL STUNTS FOR TRUST MONGERS

Brick, Lumber and Bridge Men Given Stiff Doses at Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, July 12.—Common Pleas Judge Morris today sentenced the brick and lumber men convicted of violating the Valentine anti-trust law and the bridge agents who pleaded guilty to infractions of this law.

The brick men must pay $1,000 and costs each. The lumber men and the bridge agents were sentenced to serve six months in the work house and pay the costs.

Sentences to the work house, however, have been suspended for ten days, owing to that institution being quarantined against smallpox.

The court room was overcrowded when the announcement was made that thirty prominent business men of this city were to hear their fate.

The bridge agents who were sentenced are H. G. Hammond, of the Kenton Bridge company, and W. N. Cleveland, of the Cleveland and Houston Bridge company of Columbus.

THEY SEEK LOCATION FOR A NEW HAT FACTORY

Wabash Gentlemen Here to Investigate Outlook in Fort Wayne.

The possibility of securing another important manufacturing concern in Fort Wayne developed today with the arrival of three Wabash gentlemen who are shortly to start a hat factory. They are Messrs. Samuel Simons, Benjamin Cook and Morris Wagner, who came at the request of Secretary Hanna, of the Commercial club, to investigate the outlook in Fort Wayne.

The Wabash gentlemen are men of means who have recently formed a partnership to engage in the manufacture of both soft and stiff hats, and they have purchased a factory formerly operated at Richmond. It is said that the quarters in that city are not large enough, and a more favorable location is now being sought in some city in the northern part of the state. Mr. Wagner is a practical hat manufacturer, and was formerly interested in the Pioneer Hat works at Wabash. They looked at a number of possible sites in Fort Wayne, but as yet there has been no decision regarding the location of the plant. The matter will be taken up by the Commercial club.

MGR. FALCONIO WILL ATTEND GREAT MEETING

Apostolic Delegate to Be at Convention of Catholic Clubs.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—His Excellency, the Most Rev. Diomedo Falconio, apostolic delegate of the Vatican to the United States, will arrive in this city tomorrow afternoon. The Catholics of Indianapolis have arranged to give him a warm welcome. A reception committee consisting of 150 men has been appointed.

Monignor Falconio will be met at the station by Bishops Charard and O'Donoghue and by members of the clergy of this city.

The apostolic delegate is coming to Indianapolis because of the annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic societies, which opens Monday.

Anthony Matre, secretary of the federation, will arrive from St. Louis tomorrow morning and will open headquarters at the Claypool hotel.

BLUE AND WHITE BLAZES.

Broken Trolley Wire Does Some Fine Pyrotechnic Stunts.

Many pedestrians abroad about 12 o'clock last night were made to marvel at a brilliant illumination of the heavens. A brilliant and wavering path of light that seemed to extend from far in the north across the city at about the meridian shed a glow that caused many to think the aurora borealis was doing a turn. Some others thought they were witnessing the phenomenon of a lunar rainbow. But the sky was too heavily overcast for the exhibition of either, and the cause was of an altogether different sort anyway. A West Main street car on its way to the barns broke a trolley wire on Calhoun street, just south of Main, and the broken end fell upon the rear of the car and started some electrical fireworks that almost blinded those persons who attempted to look at it. The car was set in a blaze and the department was called by Patrolman Junk, though the fire apparatus was not needed. The electrical display continued for some moments.

HAYWOOD RESUMES HIS STORY ON STAND.

Goddard and Gabbert. He declared that Orchard's story on the witness stand was the first he had heard of the matter.

Haywood first met Steve Adams in 1902. He said the $75 he sent to Adams at Ogden when the latter wired him was in full there was his (Haywood's) own money. Adams had been out prospecting and had stated on leaving Denver that if he struck anything he would locate Haywood on it.

During 1904 Steve Adams was at headquarters several times. He said he had been to the "tall timber" Adams and his wife were both drawing strike relief at this time.

Gave Adams Little Money. "Did you ever give or send him any money other than the $75 you have testified to?" "No, sir."

"Did you get your $75 back?" "No, sir. At Cripple Creek Adams and Minster, who went with him, said they would settle up as soon as the strike was over."

Adams and his wife left Colorado in the spring of 1905. Haywood said that some time later he received a letter from Mrs. Adams saying she and Steve had located a homestead in Oregon. They expected to do well, but needed a little temporary relief, promising to pay it back in butter and eggs. Thirty dollars was sent to them. The next he heard of Steve Adams was when the latter was arrested.

As to the letter he wrote to Harry Orchard's wife November 18, 1905, Haywood said his note was in reply to one from Mrs. Orchard inquiring as to her husband's whereabouts. He told her what he knew about Orchard. He had no way of knowing where Orchard was, except as the latter had told him his plans for going to Alaska. Haywood said he did not care to tell Mrs. Orchard what her husband had said as to his determination not to return to her.

Knew Nothing of Steinberg Plot. Haywood declared he knew absolutely nothing of the plot against Governor Steinberg.

"I don't know that I had thought of him after I left the state of Idaho." "Had Governor Steinberg ever tried to get back into politics?" "No, sir."

"Had he shown any disposition to become active in mining matters?" "No, sir."

The first Haywood heard of the assassination was in the papers which claimed that the crime was a culmination of the troubles in the Coughlin of Alaska. The papers also reported that a union card had been found in the effects of Thomas Hogan, who had been arrested on suspicion.

Thought Hogan Was Orchard. At miners' headquarters there was considerable question as to who Hogan was, the consensus of opinion being that it was Orchard, who had used that name in leaving Cripple Creek to seek employment elsewhere.

The first definite information came in the cipher telegram from Simpkins which was translated at first, "Can I get counsel for Hogan?" but which was afterwards corrected to read, "Cannot get counsel for Hogan."

Haywood's explanation of sending the $100 draft to Jack Simpkins on December 21, 1905, was as follows:

Simpkins came to Denver early in December to attend a meeting of the executive board. He drew $231.95 expenses while there. Cashing a check for this, he gave Haywood $200 and asked him to forward it to Spokane some time before Christmas. Simpkins said he was going on a trip and did not want to take all the money with him.

Haywood said he could not remember whether he bought the draft and mailed it or whether one of the federation stenographers attended to the matter.

Witness said he had not seen Simpkins since the executive board meeting.

Were Advised to Go Slow. When the matter of employing counsel for Orchard and to look after the interests of the organization first came up, Haywood said he and Moyer consulted with General Counsel Murphy, who advised going very slowly in the matter. After considering the subject for a day or two, Murphy advised the employment of Mr. Nugent.

The defense offered in evidence a letter written by General Counsel Murphy to Attorney Nugent, but it was ruled out by Judge Wood on the ground of immateriality.

An exception was noted. Haywood went into the details of the final employment of Attorney Fred Miller, of Spokane, to defend Orchard. At this time Attorney Crump, who had represented the Mine Owners' Association of Colorado in fights against the Western Federation of Miners, had been called into the case by the other side.

"What was the first you knew of any intention to arrest you in connection with the murder?" "When I was arrested."

Witness then related the story of his arrest, the denial of a right to counsel and the trip to Boise on a special train in charge of General Bulkley Wells, a member of the Mine Owners' association. When first brought to Boise the prisoners were taken to the state penitentiary, being later removed to the county jail at Coeur d'Alene.

Haywood's Early Testimony. Haywood took the witness stand in his own defense yesterday afternoon. For two and a half hours he replied to the questions of Attorney Darrow in a clear and unhesitating voice.

In spite of the uncomfortable hot weather the court room was filled to its capacity with men and women eager to hear what the man admitted to be the brains of the Western Federation of Miners and charged with being the archconspirator, had to say in his own behalf. The testimony had not proceeded far when the spectators were convinced that the defendant possessed a keen intellect and a memory for details that far surpassed that of Attorney Darrow, who conducted the direct examination.

Always Corrects Lawyer. Attorney Darrow rambled at times and got inextricably mixed regarding dates and events, but the defendant was ever ready to correct him.

"I didn't, and Orchard never testified to that, Mr. Darrow," the witness would reply when his counsel would ask a question different from the way it was told by Orchard on the witness stand.

Haywood admitted his acquaintance with Orchard and his meeting him occasionally at Pettibone's store and sometimes at the residence of Pettibone, but he flatly contradicted the testimony of Orchard where it related to plots for the assassination of any person or the payment of any sums of money.

In his testimony Orchard said he first met Haywood and Moyer in the offices of the federation in Denver in December, 1903, shortly after the explosion in the Vindicator mine. He said that on that occasion Haywood made the remark that he had heard of Orchard through "Bill" Easters; that he was complimented for the "good job" he had done in killing McCormick and Beck, and that he was paid $300.

First Meeting Is Later. On the witness stand yesterday afternoon Haywood denied having met Orchard until January, 1904, when the latter attended a convention in Denver which was called under the auspices of the Colorado State Federation of Labor. He said he met Orchard then talking with other delegates to the convention, but had never seen him previous to that time.

Haywood testified that he had no further dealings with Orchard until the latter came to March, 1904, when Moyer and Orchard were preparing to go to Orony and provided themselves with shotguns. He said he saw Orchard once after that, when the latter went to the office to report that Moyer had been arrested, and did not again see Orchard until the spring of 1905.

It was during this lapse that Orchard testified to blowing up the Independence depot and of journeying to San Francisco to kill Fred Bradley, during which time he was constantly in receipt of money from Pettibone. It is evident that the attorney for the defense do not intend in this trial to explain the relations between Orchard and Pettibone, but are attempting to show that Haywood had nothing to do with the financial transactions which were carried on through Pettibone.

Upholds Moyer's Story. The testimony of Haywood, as far as it has gone, was much the same as that given by Moyer Wednesday, and in substance amounts to a direct denial of Orchard's story, so far as it pertained to any criminal act. It was apparent that the Haywood had been rehearsed between Haywood and his counsel, and certain portions of Orchard's testimony were slipped over.

Big Time Next Week. It was evident from the questioning of Attorney Darrow that he relies on the testimony of the defendant than to that of his accuser. He brought out that the defendant is 38 years of age, was born in Salt Lake City, that his father was a miner and that the defendant himself went to work in the mines when 9 years of age and followed that occupation continuously until elected to his present office in 1901.

The defendant, in reply to Mr. Darrow's questions, gave a good sketch of his early life and told of writing resolutions on the bottom of a powder box while he was working in the mines. He told of his early marriage and of the illness of his wife, which resulted in making her a helpless invalid. This story had its effect on the jury, as it was calculated to have, and was creditable to the defendant when compared with the early criminal career of Orchard, who is the chief accuser of Haywood in this trial.

THE YOUNG MEN'S ARMY TO MOBILIZE AT WINONA

Will Be There During the Boys' Encampment—News of Winona Lake

Winona Lake, July 12.—Colonel A. E. Biddle, of the Young Men's Army of America, who has his headquarters in Indianapolis, was here this afternoon and completed plans for the army's encampment during the time of The Boy City, from July 26 to August 16. Mr. Biddle appears in full uniform and carries his sword at his side. He purposes to bring the uniformed soldiery of four churches of the capital city, of which he is commander-in-chief. The young men have complete military tactics and drill and will come in full uniform, as a sort of a body guard for The Boy City. The Indianapolis brigade will be made up of fully 100 well drilled young men and will be joined by battalions from Richmond, Muncie, Nappanee, Elkhart and other cities of the state where organizations have been formed. These soldiers are of an advanced age over the boys of the encampment who will form standing army of no mean proportions. They will come for regular drill, living in tents and on the rations peculiar to the soldier's life. It is considered a strong military movement, wise in its conception and one that will add a fascinating touch of the military to the Boys' Metropolis of the world, for the city once thought of has grown beyond the ordinary and must pass into the new role.

The Spelling Match. Yesterday afternoon witnessed a "spelling bee" of the old time character. Upwards of one-hundred and fifty persons participated in the contest which lasted for nearly two hours and tested the spelling book to its utmost capacity. Prof. Smith and DeVos "gave out" the words and umpired the game. There were quite a number of those who entered that fell in the first half hour of the contest, but it was a masterful and stubborn contest for honors in orthography.

Prizes were $35 up as prizes. Miss Ida Miller, of Warsaw, won the first prize of $20. Miss Augusta Charles, of Perryburg, Ohio, won the second prize of $10 and Mr. Haymaker, of Winona, won the third prize of $5.

Awards in Photography. The three judges who decided upon the diamond medal at the photographers' exhibit were G. Hammer Croughen, of Rochester, N. Y., James W. Porter, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Frank W. Medlar, of Spencer, Iowa. These judges selected eighteen pictures and from these the diamond medal awards were made, and eight have been selected for permanent display in the Daguerre institute among the eight selected for the wall decorations the picture that carried off the diamond medal failed to appear in the selection. The decision fell upon a production from the studio of Mr. Doty, of Belding, Mich., the likeness of a young soprano singer of that city.

Big Time Next Week. The churches of Jonesboro and towns along the line of the Big Four will run an extension to the assembly on the 17th. Those of Marion on August 8, and of Anderson on August 15. A number of others are planning if cars can be furnished for the days on which they have in choice.

CITY BREVITIES.

Alvin J. Williams, of Angola, has made application by letter to join the navy.

The fire department was called this afternoon to extinguish a fire which was burning in an ice house along the Wabash railroad near Fairfield avenue.

Edwin M. Gross left yesterday for New York and other eastern points. Late in August Mr. Gross will go to Greeley, Colo., to reside.

Rev. Dr. Sell will preach on Sunday evening on "Sunday Observance in European Capitals and the Effect of Such on Labor Situations in Those Cities." Dr. Sell will speak to a great extent, from personal observation.

Battery B will hold a meeting this evening to complete arrangements to attend the state encampment at Fort Benjamin Harrison at Indianapolis next week. The firing team of the battery left today. They will compete for the honor of being chosen state team which will go to the national convention at Fort Clinton, O., late in August. The team is composed of Corporal Elmer Meyers, Sergeant Ed Ayres and Private Alva Ayres.

W. A. Campbell, of Kendallville, will enter the law offices of Vessey & Vessey in this city for a time before returning to college. Mr. Campbell is a son of Arch Campbell, the well known Kendallville banker and merchant, and is the author of the "Life of Marvin Kuhns," now in course of publication.

CURED AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Chronic Stomach Trouble Pronounced Incurable by Physician Yielded to the Tonic Treatment Although Patient Had No Faith in It.

"For six years I suffered untold misery from stomach trouble," says Mrs. H. P. Flanagan, of Canton, South Dakota, "although I was treated by four physicians. No two agreed as to the nature or cause of my disease. One said I had ulcers of the stomach, another that it was chronic stomach trouble and incurable, another called it neuralgia.

"The pain was dull, not sharp, and when I walked or rode I noticed it was a great deal more severe. It was relieved when I rested or would lie down. I had no appetite and didn't care to eat at all. I tried to eat to keep up my strength but the pain was there whether I ate or not. I was run down in strength and weight.

"My husband read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and persuaded me to try them. When I began to take the pills I had no faith in them whatever but I had found no relief in anything else, so I tried them. I took about three boxes and am so well now that I eat every thing I want to. I have no trouble with my stomach and have no doubt that my cure is complete. My general health is good and I have gained in weight. I can and do recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering with stomach trouble."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not simply deaden pain; they cure the trouble which causes the pain. They are guaranteed to contain no narcotic, stimulant or opiate. They have corrected serious disorders of the stomach, have revitalized the nervous system and restored to health sufferers from severe nervous disorders. For rheumatism, indigestion, nervous headaches, many forms of weakness and debility Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended even if ordinary remedies have been tried without relief.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. A copy of our diet book will be sent free on request.

OBITUARY.

Again has the joy and pleasure of a once bright and cheerful home been changed to sorrow and gloom, and the Divine Father, who so graciously gives, came in the likeness of a dove to claim his own in the person of Miss Martha Horstmeier, who lived with her mother at 1307 Ewing street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. She leaves to mourn her a mother, four brothers and two sisters.

Martha, thou art gently sleeping. In the last, long dreamless sleep; Never more on earth to wake, and Never more in grief to weep. Softly fall the tears of sorrow, But we can not bring thee back. Thou hast passed beyond our calling. O'er death's river, deep and black.

Mother, brothers and sisters, And thy friends and schoolmates dear, All have said farewell in sorrow, All have shed the parting tear. Morning, noon and dusky evening, How we miss thee from thy place, How we long to hear thy laughter, How we long to see thy face.

Oh, dread reaper of the flowers, Why take you us so loved so well? Oh, our voiceless, bitter sorrow, That no tongue or pen can tell. Taken from us in life's morning, Laid in silence from our sight, We will leave thee with the Father, Who hath done all things aright.

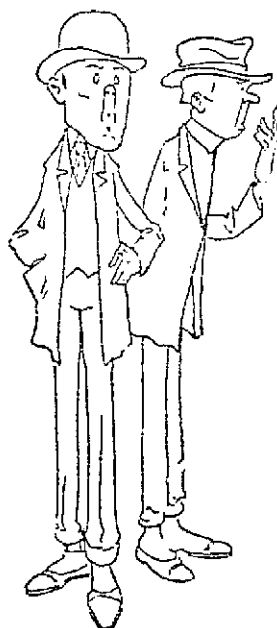

When the bright eternal sunshine Burns in rapture on our sight, May we meet thee in the drawing room, Or an endless day of light. Clasp thy hands when griefs are over, Where no aching heart shall sigh. Meet thee in life's resurrection, Never more to say good-bye.

There was much public dissatisfaction at the failure to complete the Masonic temple, and the city council revoked the Temple association's building permit and ordered the removal of the material piled up about the unfinished building.

It is said that a man from Cincinnati will open a faro bank and keno rooms here shortly. Keno is a seductive game which will simply paralyze the $7 a week clerk's salary.

BUSTING THE TRUSTS.

The suit against the American Tobacco company, just instituted, will be taken advantage of, if opportunity offers, for a trial of the new trust prosecution policy of the government, which contemplates applications for the appointment of receivers to conduct the business of combinations whose monopolistic practices are not checked by injunctions.

The radical character of this policy is only equalled by the radical character of the situation with which the administration finds itself confronted. Law officers of the government admit that the prosecution of the Northern Securities company had an effect which was more moral than real.

One of the points made recently by William J. Bryan in his magazine debate with Senator Beveridge was that while the Northern Securities company itself was dissolved the same group of directors control the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington systems, which it was the purpose of the Northern Securities company to control. Mr. Bryan has started to make political capital out of that fact in favor of some new and drastic law.

Other trust holding companies have been dissolved, but their evils seem to remain. The time is rapidly approaching when the administration will be questioned from the stump as to the real value of the trust prosecutions. Its numerous suits will be admitted, but the democrats are preparing to ask whether these victorious proceedings have reduced prices which have been raised by trust agreement to maintain prices, whether small dealers have any more chance than they formerly had, whether competition is any more free than it was. It is to get really effective results in the effort to restore competition where it has been eliminated by illegal combination that the receivership plan has been decided upon as a policy.

It is not considered expedient nor will it be necessary, in the government's view, to request the appointment of receivers for every trust which may be made the target of government prosecution, but in cases like the Standard Oil company and the American Tobacco company, which monopolize a large proportion of the commodities in which they deal, it is regarded as highly doubtful if the dissolution of such illegal combination as can be proved will of itself lead to the restoration of competition between separate companies long ago absorbed by the combination.

Was a time when it might have been shocking, but it fits well with all the rest of it. Man appointed acting mayor of Frisco to move things along pending the choosing of an executive to succeed the convicted Schmitz blurted out that he cannot conscientiously hold onto the job because he pocketed a $5,000 bribe from a telephone company. That fellow might almost be called downright honest. Begins to look, too, as though Frisco would have to take a graft man for mayor. Seems to be few of any other kind there.

Saloonkeepers in Fort Wayne should understand that the city administration can only guarantee immunity so far as it is concerned itself. No authority to prevent prosecutions for lawlessness by rank outsiders if outsiders are tired of the Sunday anarchy the administration has permitted and fostered. No redress whatever at the hands of the administration. Can't hold it responsible for what others may do.

The end of the Haywood trial is said to be in sight. Don't know about that. Testimony is all in, but the defense has a battery of a dozen lawyers and it's a one-sided bet that no worthy member of the profession would overlook so rare an opportunity for boring into tyranny, wallowing oppression and otherwise making a speech that would look well in a school reader.

Leading statesmen, admirals, generals, field marshals and financiers of the United States and Japan are getting together in one grand hurrah for peace. But it takes a lot of hurrah to drown out the hubbub of war talk in both countries, with Europe swelling the belligerent chorus with her distressed groaning that such a thing can be.

Probably as soon as the tobacco trust is done to the proper turn it will be taken off the grill to make room for the whisky trust. This anti-trust crusade is getting right down to where the people live.

Fine weather down around Sagamore Hill drove the president to the hayfield to do some strenuous stunts with a pitchfork. May also be remarked that the vice president has not been overlooking the sunshine.

It is suggested that the war on the trusts is responsible for the rise of living expenses. Some comfort to have a reason, because heretofore prices have been going up apparently without any.

The Glidden automobile endurance test seems mainly to consist of finding out which of the tourists can stand the heaviest machine upside down on him the longest.

Conviction settles lower and lower down that Judge Landis is not going to pass up Standard Oil coin on any theory that it's tainted.

Maybe American and Japanese jingoists just want to see if they are as good at starting trouble as they are accused of being.

COMMENT ON AMERICANS ABROAD.

A Woman Tells Why Foreign Criticism Isn't Wholly Unwarranted.

From time to time Americans are agitated by the critical comments of some foreign writer, usually English, who sends his impressions to his papers. As an American, with all the characteristic patriotism of one born under the stars and stripes, I have always been among the first to denounce such writers as prigs ignorant of their subject; but after a season of unprejudiced observation along the famous French and Italian Riviera and continued into Egypt, the Mecca of the majority of our travelers this season, it is forcibly borne in upon me that, after all, foreign writers are not so far wrong in their criticisms of Americans abroad; but that their observations lacked completeness is also obvious, for they failed to enumerate the failings of the English and also those of the Germans.

The most flagrant mistake which young feminine America makes when she has safely landed from her favorite Hamburg liner on this side of the Atlantic is the exercise of that freedom and natural coquetry which in her own country is understood, but which in contrast to the conduct of her far less attractive, it is true, but better-behaved English and German sisters, is no more nor less than hoydenish and in too many instances descends to vulgarity. "We are abroad and nothing matters," is the general attitude. She of good family and demure behavior in her own city coquets recklessly and at the wrong time, thinking nothing of it herself, for she means nothing, but, in the buoyancy of her spirits and the safety of being unknown, she manages to attract that natural criticism which she so bitterly resents when she returns to her own home and chances to read what the foreigners have thought of her. What is innocently called a lark, and is in itself innocent enough, no doubt, is regarded seriously by foreign men, and even to the unprejudiced American eye, the extreme unconventionality, to use a mild term, loses the charm with which it is sometimes regarded in our own country, where it is better understood.—Harriet Quimby in Leslie's Weekly.

We cordially invite inspection of our methods and when you have your will drawn we invite your confidence and if you nominate us as your Executor or Trustee we promise to take the same care of your estate in the interest of your heirs that we would want taken of our own.

ENGINEER MAKES CLEAR CONSTRUCTION BIDS ON PLANT

Committee Gets Down to Business and Learns a Few Things.

Supervising Engineer Owen Ford, in charge of the proposed municipal lighting plant, with his well modulated voice, even temper and clear conception of all of the details in connection with the bids submitted for erection and equipment, met the city council committee on contracts and franchises last night and under his guidance London prize ring and Marquis of Queensbury rules were eliminated and more was accomplished in the three hours and a half that the session lasted than in all of the other meetings combined.

Eleven o'clock came around before the explanations were all in and by that time the members of the committee and everybody else interested was yawning and probably longing for a comfortable bed and an adjournment was taken until 7:30 o'clock this evening when an executive session will be held. The report to be made will probably recommend the confirmation of the awards of the board of public works though there may be a division and a minority report.

Admonished the Engineer. Councilman J. M. Henry had been hostile to the McBride bid and he bared into Engineer Ford at the outset on that proposition, taking occasion to tell him that he was not going up against a bunch of greenhorns and small fry and that if he attempted to throw any new curves he would probably find a batter or two in the bunch. Mr. Ford assured him that he knew and respected the intelligence of the committee and was there not to argue but to give information.

Sifted down the McBride bid was based on No. 8 wire as the representative had been told that size would be used although he failed to specify it. He went before the board of public works, however, and made the explanation and it was satisfactory. Mr. Ford said it is $3,500 lower than the Olds bid. He added that he had told the McBride agent to bid on No. 8 wire and said all of the other bidders had been given exactly the same information and that he spent five days here before the letting for the sole purpose of giving out explanations that would enable all to bid intelligently. During that time he talked to about sixty interested contractors and aided all of them without any show of favoritism.

Mr. Henry asked if the McBride bid, taken on its face under the terms of the specifications, would not indicate that it was based on No. 6 wire, but Mr. Ford said that in the light of information given the bidders it was not necessary so. Before the meeting was over Mr. Henry and the engineer got on excellent terms and worked in harmony although the former intimated early in the engagement that to make a successful bid the contractor would have to stand close to Mr. Ford.

It was shown that 209 poles had been left out of the Olds bid and Mr. Olds took occasion to say that that was true, adding that if the bid had been accepted he would have stood by it and made good his mistake. The poles would have cost about $2,200, and might have been regarded as extras.

The Smoke Stack. On the subject of a smoke stack Mr. Ford said he believed concrete could have been successfully used adding that if the board of works had been crowded to get inside the estimate he would probably have recommended one because it is cheaper but in the light of developments that indicated the fund would be ample he had thought it safer to build of brick because it has been rested while concrete is in a way new.

The Weber man was there to kick but it was shown he was not the lowest bidder and that he had specified a 150-foot chimney while the specifications called for 160 feet. Their representative made an address and said that as great latitude had been allowed he thought this error might be overlooked and his concern given a chance.

The Boilers Next. Next came the boiler question and Joseph A. Bursley, professor of mechanical engineering at Ann Arbor university took a shot at the P-K. He said he had taken the figures submitted the night before and calculated under standard tables that the boiler would be able to develop only 200 horsepower instead of 250 called for in the specifications and that the pressure will be only 143 pounds instead of 160. Nathan Cohn took up the statement and explained to the committee the construction that enabled him to get the results required and closed by saying that he would have a bond to guarantee the contract.

Mr. Ford stated that since the letting he had investigated the boiler question at the request of the P-K concern and had found a number in St. Louis that are doing magnificent work. He mentioned those in use at the plants of the Brown Shoe company in particular and concluded with the assurance that there is no doubt in his mind but that the boiler is all right. There was further questioning on different branches of the question and an adjournment was taken.

FEMININE WILLIAM TELL SAVES.
Rescues Husband From Being Killed by Dog by Her True Aim.

Lawnside, Ind., July 12.—Mrs. Charles Robinson, in the role of a heroine, William Tell, saved her husband's life yesterday by shooting a dog which had thrown him to the ground and was tugging at his throat. Robinson was at the dog's mercy, when Mrs. Robinson appeared on the scene with a gun. The dog was standing on her husband's body, and had not her aim been so true the bullet might have killed the man. She saved his life by killing the dog at a few feet distance away. She took aim and sent the bullet straight through the animal's body, killing it.

NEW DRYDOCKS WILL BE NECESSARY IN THE PACIFIC

No Place to Repair Larger Battleships of the Big Naval Fleet.

Washington, July 12.—Now that the visit of the battleships of the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific coast is officially admitted, the gossip of the navy department touches upon the docking facilities available for the accommodation of these vessels. It is generally expected that after their long trip around Cape Horn, some of the vessels at least, will require a thorough overhauling and the question naturally arises where this will be done, in view of the fact that the navy has but one dock on the Pacific coast, that at Puget Sound, which is capable of receiving the large battleships of the modern navy.

Too Small for Big Warships.

There is a dock at Mare Island but this too small for the accommodation of any of the big battleships. The government has another dry dock under construction at Mare Island which, when completed, will be capable of receiving the largest of the vessels now in service or contracted for. But there is considerable difference of opinion among the officials on duty at the navy department at Washington as to whether, after all, this dock will be available for use in view of the limited depth of water across the bar over which the vessels have to go before reaching navy yard. Some of the officers think that this can be done and cite as an example the recent feat of the armored cruiser Charleston which went over the bar drawing 24 feet of water. These officers say that a ship of this kind has a deeper draft than the big battleships, which can be lightened to the extent of a foot or more by unloading the greater part of their cargo of coal. Other officers say that the battleships have a deeper draft than the Charleston when she crossed the bar.

Six Years at It; Not Yet Done.

The new dry dock at Mare Island has been under construction for almost six years. The delay has been a source of extreme disappointment to the officials here and now the probabilities are, according to the official reports received at the navy department, that it will be almost a year and a half before the dock is ready to be turned over to the government. The contract called for its completion November 20 next. The government declared the former contract forfeited because of the slow progress and a new contract was necessary, under which the work is now going on. The new dock will be 720 feet long, 102 feet wide and thirty feet deep.

Naval officials, however, are not giving the question of docking facilities on the coast any serious concern, for they say there are two large docks at Hunter's point near San Francisco, belonging to private parties which the navy may use just as an private ship owner, by paying the usual docking charges. One of these docks is very large and will accommodate any American vessel at all.

LET CEILING CONTRACT.

The school board at a special meeting held at noon today awarded to Gerding & Auman the contract to place steel ceilings in the corridors and rooms of the Harmer school building. The firm was lowest with its bid of $550.

APPEALS TO FEDERAL COURT.

Shipbuilders' Strike at Lorain Causes Unrest.

Lorain, Ohio, July 12.—The American Shipbuilding company has appealed to the federal court for protection against possible damage to property and violence against employees, as a result of the second strike. This week the shipbuilders walked out again on account of not desiring to work with former strike breakers. Indemnities were issued by the United States court in Cleveland today. A separate injunction against each striker was issued and served. There were 125 orders forbidding the strikers from interfering with the company or its employees.

WANTS FEDERAL QUARANTINE.

New Orleans, La., July 12.—Dispatches from Galveston, Tex., say that a movement to make United States maritime quarantine universal on the Gulf coast has been started by the Galveston chamber of commerce. Texas alone, of all the Gulf states, maintains strict maritime quarantine, the other states having turned their quarantines over to the federal government. The Galveston chamber has sent a request to Washington that, for the sake of the welfare of the port, Galveston be given a quarantine station and regulations the same as those of other Gulf state ports.

SENATOR BACON HEAVY LOSER.

Atlanta, Ga., July 12.—The Constitution today says: "United Senator A. O. Bacon is out at least $20,000 as a result of the troubles of the Exchange bank of Macon, in which he was a stockholder to that extent. Senator Bacon has been interested in the growth of the bank and has from time to time invested in its stock."

There is a possibility that the senator's loss may be recovered, since it may be necessary to assess the stockholders of the bank to meet all of the bank's indebtedness.

BAKED BEETS.

Many old-fashioned cooks like the English way of baking beets instead of boiling. They claim they preserve their natural sweetness better when baked. Wash well, but do not break the skin. Put into a baking tin with a little hot water thrown over them. When tender, peel, slice, and serve with oil and lemon juice, pepper and salt, or butter, pepper and salt.

Boiled beets are fine chilled, sliced with celery, and covered with mayonnaise.

GRAPE-NUTS.

A Missouri woman says:

"While getting over the grip, and while my stomach was so irritable I could not eat anything without distress. I found I could take a dish of Grape-Nuts with cream or good milk, and feel built up like I had eaten a full meal, and yet have none of the unpleasant effects of indigestion. I wish people knew its worth."

"It seems to me trained nurses and physicians could use it to such good advantage. It is really the most nourishing and easily digested food I ever tried."

Grape-Nuts food is now recommended by physicians all over the world. They know it contains the delicate particles of phosphate of potash obtained from the field grains. This is the element nature combines with albumen of the food to build the soft gray substance in the nerve centers and brain. In the human body. The effect is in some ways like a stimulant, but does not wear off, for it is a natural rebuilding.

Grape-Nuts can be made into a great many different and palatable dishes. As an illustration: A most delicious mock pumpkin pie can be made from Grape-Nuts after the following recipe: Pour boiling water over 1/2 cup Grape-Nuts, let stand 10 minutes; add 2 eggs, 4 tablespoonsful of sugar, 2 cups sweet milk, 3 teaspoons of ginger, 1 teaspoon mixed spices. Stir over slow fire until thoroughly boiled. Bake pie dough in deep pan. When done, put in prepared Grape-Nuts, return to oven and brown. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

NEW RULES FOR USING POST CARDS IN U. S. MAILS

Provision is Made for Message Written on the Address Side.

Washington, July 12.—For years Americans and others have been sending to the United States from foreign countries postal cards and post cards (private mailing cards) with messages written on the front as well as on the back of the cards, although in this country this advantage has been denied the users of government postal cards. Some months ago the United States postal laws and regulations were amended so as to give that privilege to buyers of post cards, but such concession was not made applicable to postal cards.

In order to remedy this inconsistency and to prevent any further confusion and annoyance to the public, Postmaster General Meyer today promulgated an order, effective August 1, 1907, providing that the face side of a postal card may be divided by a vertical line placed approximately one-third the distance from the end of the card, the space to the left of the line to be used for a message, and the portion to the right to be used for the address only. A very thin sheet of paper may be attached if it completely adheres to the card, and such a paper may bear both writing and printing. Advertisements, illustrations or writing may appear on the back of the card and on the left third of the front. Postal cards bearing particles of glass, metal, mica, sand, tinsel or other such substances are declared to be unmailable, except when enclosed in envelopes with proper postage affixed, or when treated in such a manner as will prevent the objectionable materials from being rubbed off or injuring the hands of persons handling the mail.

The contractor at Rumford Falls, Me., is now putting in new machinery for the manufacture of postal cards of a new design conforming to the conditions of the amended regulations.

TEACHER MUST LIVE ON LAND MORE THAN IN VACATION TIME

Department Warns Those Who Enter Public Land Under Homestead Law

Washington, July 12.—The interior department is receiving a flood of inquiries regarding the effect of a recent decision of the department relative to the rights of school teachers in the matter of taking up public lands under the homestead law. The decision was rendered in a contest made against the entry of a woman teacher employed in Minnesota, and while it was shown that she had lived on the land only during her vacations, covering only about fourteen weeks for each of the four years she had held it, the department failed to sustain the contestant. This holding has been construed throughout the public land states as equivalent to a declaration that teachers may be permitted to make homestead entries and to make final proof without complying with the requirements made of other applicants and the large number of letters received on the question promises numerous entries under that construction.

Acting Secretary of the Interior Woodruff and Acting Commissioner Dennett, of the general land office, today united in a statement that the decision has received a construction which was not contemplated by the department. They call attention to the fact that the decision did not apply to a commutation case, but to a case in which the applicant had held the land for four of the five years required by law. They point out that the decision was not final, and that it dealt with the rights of the contestant rather than those of the contestee, merely holding that the improvements were adequate, but not attempting to say whether title will be granted at the end of five years if the proof shows only fourteen weeks occupancy for each year. They therefore warn teachers that disappointment is liable to be the fate of those who may attempt to secure land by living on it only during vacation time, and especially of those who attempt to secure it under such a plan with the commutation feature added.

BANK WILL RESUME.

First National at Hicksville to Get on Its Feet Again.

Hicksville, O., July 12.—Affairs of the First National bank of Hicksville, which closed its doors two weeks ago, will soon be straightened out and the institution will resume business.

The stockholders were called together and at once agreed to double their money. That is, voted to assess themselves a hundred per cent on their stock. To this resource can be credited something over $100,000. There is also available $10,000 surplus. In addition to these, the depositors agreed to leave 25 per cent of their deposits stand as a resource. In time, as the earnings justify, this last will be refunded to the depositors with usual bank interest.

The paper that is called doubtful, of course, will produce considerable means, some of it a hundred per cent. This fund, as it comes in, will be added to the earnings and will hasten the return of depositors' money and the bank to a dividend distributing basis. This makes the bank as sound as a dollar once more, and prevents the loss of the institution to the town, with its accompanying shock to business interests.

WIRES WERE CROSSED.

Gas Company's Telephone Line Is Put Out of Business.

Bluffton, Ind., July 12.—The independent telephone line operated by the Fort Wayne Gas company between this city and Fort Wayne came in contact with the trolley wire of Fort Wayne and Bluffton interurban line Wednesday night at a point about a mile and three-quarters north of the city and as the result the entire telephone line was burned out. The result would have been more serious had Charles Smith, who is employed as night watchman at the gas office, reported through to the Fort Wayne offices a minute or so after twelve, instead of promptly at twelve as he did Wednesday night. He had no more than released the receiver when flames shot forth from the telephone in the local office. Had he been talking at the time it is more than probable he would have been severely shocked and badly burned. The phone was badly dismantled by the bolt, and was entirely burned out. When the two wires crossed north of town a great electrical display followed. The telephone wire was nearly burned in two.

GARDNER'S OPINION.

President of Limekiln Club Gives Advice to Members.

DEMANDS A SQUARE DEAL.

The People Must Not Be Bunkoed, Says the Good Brother, and Warns Brothers Shin, Jones and Smith to Be Careful.

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Gentlemen," said Brother Gardner, president of the Limekiln club, as he rose in his place at the last meeting, "dar am a few words I wish to say to sartin members of dis club dis evenin'." Am Brudder Samuel Shin present at dis meetin'?

Brother Shin was there, and as he bobbed up in response the president looked at him for a long minute and then continued:

"Bradder Shin, de report has reached me dat you have sold your mowl, borrowed $200 of your moulder-in-law and am about to open a grocery store and enter upon a mercantile career. Am it a fact?

"IT'S A HUMBLE BEGINNING TO PEDDLE CAKES OF SOAP."

"Yes, sah," was the prompt reply. "I am glad to hear it, and I wish you success, but dar am a seboral things you should keep in mind if you wish to climb to de top."

"In de first place, make up your mind to give all customers a square deal. De grocery trade am full of tricks and twists and dodges. Dar am lyin' and short weights and workin' off old stock. You kin sell thirty and fifty cent tea from de same chest. You kin draw ebory gallon of kerosene half a pint short. You kin dampen your sugar and sell Rio coffee for Java. By sittin' up nights and thinkin' up new swindles you kin make at least $5 a week extra, though all de time you will know yourself to be a liar and a swindler. As sich, you may deceive de people for a year or so, and den some mawwin' you'll take a squat and de sheriff will have possession."

Smiling at Honesty.

"It's got to be de fashion to sneer at honesty. It's got to be de fashion to call lyin' and cheatin' 'business.' It's got to be de fashion to look upon de people at large as a lot of pigeons to be plucked. Dar am a mighty change comin', and it heint far away. De people am wakin' up, and if you live a year longer you'll see de cheats and liars and swindlers on de run. Dar am gwine to be a return to honest old ways, and de man who don't fine de procession will have to go out of business."

"Make up your mind to gib de people a square deal, but don't expect to git one in return right away. De people of dis country have been lied to and swindled so long and so persistently dat dey will look upon a square man as a novelty until dey have tested him ober and ober agin. For de first year ebory customer will expect to be swindled, and he will try to swindle you in return, but arter dat you will need two extra clerks to wait on de crowd. I has been hard put to it for de last fifteen years, but I hasn't let go my belief dat we have a few honest men left in de kentry. You may set down, Brudder Shin, and I'll ax if Givendam Jones am in de hall wid us?"

Brother Jones had fallen asleep behind de redhot stove, but some one threw a potato and hit him in de head, and he woke up and stood up.

"Brudder Jones," said the president, "I have sometimes thought dat your rather vigorous name might hamper you if you moved away to a strange town where people were not acquainted wid your ways. I took it when you first fined dis club dat you didn't givendam for nuthin', but I elzed you up wrong. I has found dat you didn't givendam for trusts and rings and wildcat gold and copper mines, but was determined to go your way as an honest man. Dat's better, and it shows dat your old dad had his eyes open when he gib you dat name instead of Claude or Harold. I am told dat you am about to start a wood yard in Buffalo."

"Yes, sah—a small one," replied the brother.

Principle of Square Deal.

"We shall be sorry to lose you from dis club, and we shall take heer dat de people of Buffalo understand what you givendam about and what you don't givendam about. You am gwine to start in a humble, modest way and gradually build up. It must be on de principle of a square deal."

"Don't try to pass off swamp ash for hickory."

"Don't try to ring in pine for ash."

When On Your Vacation.

Let the Daily Sentinel follow you. 10c per week; payable in advance.

"Don't chuck in old rods for straight wood."

"If you sell a cord of wood, deliver a cord."

"Dar am opportunity for rebatin' in de wood business. Jest you take notice dat rebatin' am became one of de lost arts. In about a year more some judge will be found who has backbone 'nuff to send a rebater to de penitentiary, what he belongs. It has been delivered dat de trusts and de railroads don't own nor run dis kentry. One price to all and no rebatin'. Dey won't believe our dar in Buffalo dat an honest man has come among dem, and for de first six months you'll be looked upon as a strange animal who has escaped from some museum, but bimely you'll be accepted for what you am, and de wood will begin to roll out and de dollars to roll in. You may now set down while I ask if Pickles Smith happens to be present."

Pickles seemed to be expecting a call and was quickly on his feet and waiting for what was coming to him.

"Bradder Smith," said the president after helping himself to a glass of hard cider from de pitcher beside his elbow, "you was ober to my cabin last night."

"Yes, sah."

"You come ober dere to tell me dat you had a chance to go into business and to borrow $2 of me to start you?"

"Yes, sah."

A Humble Beginning.

"It was de soap business, soap to clean clothes, and de $2 would buy you forty cakes and give you a start. You got de money, and I had somethin' to say to you. What I said I repeat yere. De people of dis kentry want a square deal in soap as well as in de Panama canal. It's a humble beginnin' to peddle cakes of soap from house to house, but if de peddler keeps truth in view it may end in a soap factory kiverin' an acre of ground. You can't blame de people at large for mistrustin' you at first. It's fur you to tell de truth and let 'em see what de soap will do. What de civilized world am sguin' for today am a soap dat will take out grease spots. Have you got it? Will it do it ebory day in de week, Sundays and holidays included? Am it all soap or half mush? Am it harmless if de baby gets hold of it, or will it bring about a funeral?"

Hardships of Great Men.

"Bradder Smith, I can't say dat Alexander de Great started out as a soap peddler. I don't know ancient history well 'nuff to say dat Plato or Cicero carried soap from house to house. I have never heard it said dat our Washington even used soap to take de grease spots out of his uniform arter he got through makin' us a free people, but dis I kin tell you: De honest, truthful man who am peddlin' soap from house to house today heint gwine to be peddlin' it two years from now. He's shub to get a boost up de ladder. Some one am gwine to be willin' to put in capital agin honesty. Right yere and right now I'm sayin' dat I'll risk $500 on you sooner dan put in half de amount wid a butcher who am intendin' to work off all de bones at de same price as de meat."

"All you folks dat have had your ears open have heard some wonderful things in de last two or three years. De chest and har and swindler—de man and de men whose motto am 'De public be damned'—am on de run, and de powers dat be am stretchin' out de strong arm for de protection of de people in general. Jest at present most of our prisons have got de sign of 'To Rent' hung out. You won't have to wait more'n two years longer to find 'em chuck full and rummin' ober, and you'll inqar for men in high places to find dat dey have changed deir postoffice address. Let us now go home."

M. QUAD.

Couldn't Touch Him.

"I tell you, sir, you're a liar!" "Sir! If I were a fighting man, I'd knock you down for that."

"I'll bet you $10 I can prove it."

"Sir, I—er—never bet."

A New Trust.

"This puts an end to my career," said Capt. Howland in disgust. "Some enterprising financier has organized a great heart trust!"

"Now must I hang my quiver up? And let my bright tipped arrows rust. Despair and sorrow fill my cup. They've organized a great heart trust."

"How eagerly the men will flock. When such reports as these are heard: 'Filtrating hearts are common stock; Faithful and loyal hearts preferred;'

"Chicago bold advance has made; Boston is showing a decline; For foreign hearts large sums are paid; The southern peach crop's very fine;'

"In splinters there's a sudden halt; Widows show hardening tendency; Matrons are steady, firm and dull; Husbands are acting bearishly."

"Ah, well," said Capt. "I've no fear. For every trust must have its day. And when it falls I'll be right here. To run the game my own old way."

BUFFALO MAN KILLS SALOONKEEPER AND WOMAN

His Lady Friend Would Not Give Up Her Job With the Liquor Man.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 12.—Peter Forrester, a well known saloon keeper and sporting man, and Marie Smith, 32 years old, a waitress in his saloon restaurant, were murdered yesterday. George Hodson, a painter, is accused of the crime. The Smith woman formerly lived with Hodson and her refusal to leave Forrester's place and resume her relations with Hodson are the alleged causes of the double murder. Hodson was arrested a few minutes after the crime was committed. He was covered with blood, but declared that he had no recollection of what occurred.

Forrester was sitting in front of his saloon when, it is alleged, Hodson rushed up and stabbed him twice with a butcher knife. Hodson, it is alleged, then rushed upstairs to Marie Smith's room where he was in bed asleep, but was awakened by the bursting open of the door. As she sprang from the bed Hodson, it is alleged, stabbed the woman in the breast and abdomen. Forrester died in five minutes. The woman was taken to a hospital, where she died on the operating table.

Forrester was 60 years old. His brother, Edward J. Forrester, is a captain on the Buffalo police force.

KILLED WOMAN HE LOVED.

Tacoma, Wash., July 12.—Driven to desperation by the false promises of the woman he loved, Frank Harvey yesterday shot and instantly killed Mrs. Gertrude Hall, and seriously if not fatally wounded Sherman Blanchard, whom he found in a room with her. After the shooting the murderer gave himself up. In his pocket was found a note stating that he wished his money to go to the woman he killed, in case of accident.

Swiss Toast—Mash one-half box of berries, but not too fine; sweeten with one-quarter cup of sugar, then cut five slices of stale bread as for toasting. Cover each slice with the berries. Retain some of the juice so as not to make the berries too soft. Heat about two tablespoons of butter in a large frying pan; put the slices with the berries on them carefully into the hot butter and fry slowly until the bread is browned on the underside, basting the berries with the butter while in the pan. Transfer the bread and berries to a hot platter; pour the rest of the butter over them and serve immediately. New and delicious.

Allegany Muffins—This recipe appeared several years ago, but is repeated for the benefit of the newer readers. These muffins are the best I have ever seen. They are made with one cup of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of lard, two teaspoons of baking powder, half a teaspoon of salt and one egg. Mix all the dry ingredients and rub them through a sieve into a bowl. Melt the butter and lard in a cup, after beating the egg until it is light, add the milk to it. Four the mixture on the dry ingredients. Add the melted lard and butter, and after beating vigorously for a minute, put in buttered muffin pans and bake fifteen minutes in a quick oven. Muffins made from this recipe are as light as a feather.

Sportsman's Trout—Take two fresh young trout. Clean, wash and then wipe dry. Use one-half teaspoon of salt and two or three dashes of pepper over the fishes. Put in a pan to fit and fill to the level with cream. Bake a light brown. When the fish will have absorbed the

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cordic, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has been done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—his popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

'HOGGING' STANDING CORN

Some Good Western Feeders Consider This Method a Profitable One in Most Cases.

(R. L. Dean, Iowa.)

HAVING observed some discussion about turning hogs into standing corn I will give my experience in the line:

Thirty years ago nearly every farmer hogged down some corn, but owing to neglect of details many had losses, especially so when the well improved hog was given the treatment of the razor-back. Eventually the practice was largely abandoned. However, in recent years the practice has been revived.

The matter has been studied with some care, and it has been found that the practice in itself is not at fault, but only the lack of attention to the right things.

Now many of our most intelligent and successful raisers fatten their hogs in this way, and so well convinced are they of its practicability that they are not afraid to uphold it in the press.

Our own experience dates back ten years. We had a few losses at the first from causes which will be specified. The present year, on September 13, we turned 122 hogs weighing from 50 to 200 pounds into a field of 10 1/2 acres by drill measure. The total weight of that date was 15,693 pounds.

The field produced probably sixty bushels of corn per acre, and with the corn was a good growth of pumpkins. The watering place was in an adjacent five-acre lot of clover and alfalfa following the corn crop. There was sufficient natural shade at one corner to keep the hogs in comfort on the hot days. The field was cleaned up on October 11. The bunch of hogs were weighed and showed a net gain of 6,552 pounds.

The field hogged down was disked three times and sown to wheat with a disk drill. When the fields are cleaned up to late for wheat we sow rye in the same way for early pasture in the spring. This saves loss of droppings from washing and provides a growth to be plowed under for another crop of corn.

Hogs should not be turned into corn until the ears have matured sufficiently to prevent their sowing when left only partly eaten. Smaller hogs or pigs follow advantageously the larger ones to pick up much of the corn that may be down. A good supply of pumpkins in the field is excellent for variety in the diet, and we believe they pay well. Do not attempt to hog down corn unless shade and water are abundant. Drive the hogs to the water.

This allows us to turn the corn into meat at a time when it is most readily assimilated. It makes it possible to fatten the hogs during the finest weather of the year and fits the most of them for market before the price declines materially. This means an advance of from $1.00 to $2.00 per hundred weight over later prices.

Tankage is all right for hogs, provided it is fed with corn or other grain. It will not do to feed alone, because it contains too much protein. A correspondent of Tama county, Iowa, writes to know whether he should feed fattening cattle barley instead of corn. We should say not, unless he raises barley and does not raise corn. Even then, it would probably pay better for him to sell his barley and buy corn. In some states, where barley is easily grown and corn is not, the former is fed to good advantage.

A strange dog in a bunch of cattle will run off many pounds of flesh in a few minutes.

Feeding cattle are simply flesh-producing machines and they should be disturbed as little as possible. Keep them in good order and promote business as much as possible.

A better plan is to keep salt where cattle can get at it when they want it instead of mixing it with the feed. A steer generally knows what he wants better than the feeder himself.

Always feed fattening cattle to the minute as near as possible. To keep them waiting an hour after the regular feeding time causes a loss of weight.

Mud is not a flesh producer. A tiled drain feed lot is a joy forever.

Why is it that so many farmers locate their feed lots in the lowest ground on the farm?

Now that the western rangers are passing away, the supply of the beef for the future must come from the farms. Better get ready to supply the demand.

Hogs, sheep and cattle may be forced to live upon the same rations, but they will not all thrive alike.

SOME HINTS BY UNCLE SILAS.

I heard yesterday that our neighbor on the hill road bought some fine currant "trees" from a traveling agent for $2.25 a "tree." If he had read the American Farm World he would know he can make "trees" of currant bushes by pruning. He was badly swindled. The only safe way is to deal with reputable firms that advertise in high-class farm papers and set the dog on the tramp agent.

I got a good pointer from seeing the lawn at our state experiment farm last week. The lawn was not ornamental with flower beds, but was as clean and even as a lawn mower could make it. The flowers are all planted in beds near the house or at the sides and back of the big lot. They set off the lawn like a frame to a picture and I realized as I had never before that a well-kept lawn cannot be improved by flower beds.

Jones has typhoid in the family. That probably comes from the well or the milk. His well is lower than the ground surrounding it, and surface water runs into it. The well at the cow barn is so situated that it gets barrels of water from the barn yard every month. If he had looked after the wells and filled up the ground around them with water-tight curbing he would probably have saved his little girl the danger and distress of typhoid, to say nothing of the doctor's bill.

MILK GOATS COMING UP.

Recently scientific investigations have brought out facts that greatly enhance the value of goats' milk, and that to an immeasurable degree, a fact that cannot be too widely known and the importance of which cannot be overestimated.

The numerous inquiries that have been conducted of late years by scientists have elicited what is now pretty generally admitted by medical men that tuberculosis can be, and is communicated to human beings through the milk and flesh of cattle afflicted with that disease, the increase of consumption in children being largely attributed to the use of tuberculosis milk.

Now when we consider, on the one hand, the terrible character of this insidious disease, and on the other hand the absolute necessity for the use of milk in the healthful rearing of children, such a revelation is simply appalling.

What makes matters worse, however is that a cow may be suffering from the malady in its earliest stages without the disease being detected. In view of such a state of things who will not experience a sense of relief on hearing that goats' milk is entirely free from this element of danger? Professor Nocard states that out of over 130,000 goats and kids that are brought to Paris for slaughter at the abattoirs of La Villette every spring the meat inspectors of that city have failed to discover a single case of phthisis.

THE DEADLY POTATO BLIGHT. This is a fungus disease, which causes growers immense loss every year. The experiment stations have worked hard to find a means of controlling it and their experiments show that the effects of the disease, particularly in early blight, as shown in the first picture, may be greatly reduced by two or three sprayings with Bordeaux mixture. This treatment also works well with the late blight, as shown in the second picture, and it faithfully adhered to will in most cases save the crop.

NOTES OF THE HOG LOT.

Build the fence around the hog lot so the pigs cannot wriggle through. Once they learn the trick nothing short of a bull proof fence can stop them.

If we are going in for hog raising let us plan our campaign in advance and then stick to our work. A haphazard, go-as-you-please method is sure to end in failure.

A pig rises up today only to be cut down tomorrow. He is with us but a short time, but during that period he is either making or losing money fast. It all depends upon his owner.

A chicken-eating sow is an abomination and is not worth her keep unless she can be confined in a hen tight enclosure.

Give the hogs shade and plenty of air with it. A tight, dark pen is a poor place for hogs in hot weather.

While a hog will drink dirty water clean water will make better pork.

If a pig is allowed to wallow in a muddy pool he will never get over the habit, but will always return to it.

Hogs must live on the ground to thrive—particularly in summer time.

A pig catches cold very easily and should always be protected from draughts at night. Pneumonia carries off thousands every year.

It is the pig's nature to root in the ground and it is necessary to his health.

Hogs should be changed from one pasture to another whenever practicable.

Do not disturb the sow for at least a day after farrowing.

Teach the pigs to eat corn as soon as possible. Crack it for them at first.

RED KIDNEY BEANS.

We found this variety preferable for canning purposes to the ordinary white beans and they are also considerably better and more profitable for growers on account of their making an excellent yield—from often to thirty bushels to the acre. They are less liable to discolor from wet weather than the common white bean, bring a better price on the market right along and yet the planting and care is the same as for the white bean.—Francis I. Risley.

STUDY CATTLE MARKETS

Feeders Should Plan Months Ahead for the Sale of Their Fattening Animals.

IN a number of instances last winter men who had undertaken the feeding of cattle failed because of a failure to map out a definite plan before they commenced feeding. One man, for example, started to feed a number of cattle for the Christmas market. He had very little experience, and not knowing how long it took to fatten an animal, found them unfit for the market when Christmas arrived.

He had foolishly commenced feeding them a heavy grain ration from the start, thinking that by so doing he would finish them rapidly, and thus he found his grain supply pretty well exhausted before his cattle were half finished.

He had also fed them about twice as much grain as was necessary to secure a good gain, and hence with half finished cattle on his hands, used to a heavy grain ration, he could not let down on the amount well needed. There was no recourse but to increase the supply of meal and continue to feed for several months in order to get rid of the cattle at a fair price. The experiment, so far as he was concerned, was a financial failure, though men in the vicinity where this happened fed cattle at a profit.

The other instances referred to, while different in detail, were similar in results and the cause was almost the same. The inference to be drawn is that one who proposes to feed cattle must know what he is trying to do and then proceed in an intelligent way if he hopes to succeed.

Formulating the plan is therefore the first essential and might aptly be termed a feeder's motto. True, a plan no matter how well prepared, cannot always be adhered to, but it is easier to meet contingencies with one in mind than when going at a haphazard gait.

After the cattle are secured many persons make the mistake of putting them on feed at once. Animals brought off the grass will not readily take to a fodder and grain ration. They must be given several days in which to become accustomed to the changed food and surroundings.

This is appropriately termed the preliminary feeding period and should cover from 7 to 14 days, the longer period being preferable. During this time very little grain need be fed; just enough to accustom them to its use and to get them to relish it. Give them good corn fodder or silage, but do not feed linseed. The attempt should be rather to teach them to acquire a liking for the new food.

Animals will sometimes not take readily to new kinds of foods for several days. Examples of which are sometimes seen in the case of silage and cotton-seed meal. After they once acquire a taste, however, they eat these foods ravenously. The "putting on feed" process should therefore be slow and deliberate.

A violent change of foodstuffs requires a new adjustment of the digestive system, and many people make the mistake of trying to rush cattle on a heavy grain ration in the beginning, with the result that the appetite soon becomes cloyed and the animals go "off feed," something little short of a disaster to the feeder.

With new feeds and forced feeding from the beginning the digestion of the animals is likely to be upset, so the cloying of the appetite and "getting off feed" is often not a simple matter, but something whose effects may be felt for several months.

G. V. Leighton, of Payette, Idaho, sold 10,000 head of sheep, 1,220 acres of land and a farm outfit for $50,000. Mr. Leighton started in the sheep business on a small scale 15 years ago.

The Arizona coat breeders of Oregon say that the annual clip from their flocks amounts to nearly $150,000, while the value of their yearly increase approximates $250,000.

Prof. Arthur H. Howell, of the Department of Agriculture, has discovered 28 varieties of birds which feed on bull weevils and it is hoped that this discovery may in some way result in clearing the southern cotton fields of the pest. It is urged that laws be passed to protect the birds.

A new species of thornless cactus produced by Luther Burbank, has properties as fodder for cattle which will equal many of the desert grasses.

Prof. Jaffa of the California university says this plant carries nutritive powers equal to three-fourths that of alfalfa.

On January 1 there were 19,741,000 horses in the United States valued at $33.51 per head. This is a substantial increase both in number and in value over 1905.

February 14 there were shipped from Greeley, Colo., 54 carloads of sheep and lambs containing 20,000 head. These came from the great beef pulp feeding grounds and were destined for the Chicago market.

MUST RAISE MANY CROPS.

Twenty years ago hundreds of North Dakota farmers bought butter, eggs, and even potatoes and cabbages at the village stores, but they were not real farmers, merely wheat raisers. They depended entirely upon one crop, and when that failed distress followed. James J. Hill quickly taught them the folly of that kind of farming, and today the state's diversified crops are equal to those of any other northern state. This educational movement was not that Mr. Hill had any love for the farmers then, nor has now, but he had a big railway to feed and was forced to teach the farmer how to produce the freight. Now the experiment stations are carrying on the education commenced by Mr. Hill and are doing it better.

I saw a new thing in wheel hoes the other day. It is rigged like a lawn mower, with teeth, or small sharp blades in place of the grass blades on the mower. When pushed along by a husky man it digs up weeds at wonderful rate. The hoes can be set to any depth. It's a great thing, but takes muscle to make it go.

There is no doubt that a steer can be fattened on a few number of pounds of dry matter when he is fed from a silo.

UNCLE HENRY.

BAD ROADS COME HIGH.

It costs the farmers of this country $25,000,000 to haul their corn crop to market, and $22,000,000 to get the wheat crop to the elevators. For hauling 12 of the principal products of the farm to the market places it costs farmers $74,000,000—millions, please understand. Those figures are made up by government experts. Trolley lines will in a few years reduce this cost materially and good roads will lessen the cost still more. When the roads are in such condition that two tons can be hauled in one load instead of 1,500 pounds the saving will be enormous. Is there any reason, then, why farmers should not do everything they can to get good roads?

TO STOP SOIL WASHING.

Cover Crops Should Be Grown Every Year for the Purpose.

(J. G. Mosier, Illinois Experiment Station.)

When soils are likely to wash, an ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of cure. The best remedy is a preventive one. This applies especially to the formation of gullies on hill-sides, by which a farm may be completely ruined in a very few years.

When these ditches are small they may be filled with rubbish that will check the current of water and cause the sediment to be deposited there. The general washing that takes place from the surface of all hills and even slightly rolling land should be looked after as well.

This washing removes the best soil and lowers the productive capacity of very large areas of land in Illinois. Much of this was not of the best to begin with, and the removal of the thin top soil has rendered many tracts worthless. Silt and clay soils are much more liable to wash than sandy ones, because the particles are smaller; consequently more easily carried by water; and as these soils do not absorb the rainfall readily, because the pores are small, so there is more water to run off.

While it is impossible to change the inorganic constituents of soils to any appreciable extent, yet they may be treated in such a way as to change the texture in a few years. This may be done by incorporating organic matter in them. The partially decayed material cements the soil particles into granules or grains, giving it somewhat the porosity and looseness of a sandy soil.

The granules thus formed are too large to be carried readily. When in this condition water will be absorbed rapidly, and if deep plowing is practiced the ground will be in condition to absorb a heavy rainfall. It is estimated that ten inches of loose soil will absorb two inches of rainfall.

A handy wagon for hauling milk. The bottom of the body is just high enough to reach the level of the average railroad platform.

A large supply of organic matter should be maintained, if possible, by growing legumes and cover crops. In fact, a soil that is liable to wash badly should never pass through the winter without a cover crop.

The roots will hold the soil particles together, and the top will prevent rapid surface currents from forming.

RAIL FENCE WISDOM.

Planting corn in ground that has not been properly made ready is like going duck hunting without ammunition. July is about the busiest month in the year—particularly if we have failed to do the thing that might have been done in May and June. Time is real money these days.

The total sales at the Chicago Automobile Show in February were $10,000,000 in round numbers. A pretty good proportion of this vast sum was spent by farmers for road carriages and traction engines. The auto is here to stay and the sooner we join with auto associations to regulate speed and punishment for the criminally reckless driver, the better for us.

Boys, better a job on the home farm with small but sure gains every year than a clerkship for a month and shiny pants in the big city.

The boy who leaves a good home on the farm to seek a soft snap in the city very quickly has his eyes opened. Hanging to a strap in a car packed with human beings as he never saw a cattle car so packed; living on a salary that barely pays the cost of a cheerless box of a hall bedroom at a cheap boarding house; without friends and up against the fiercest competition the world has ever seen—these things are likely to produce a serious case of remorse in most boys.

It is a wise man who takes his measure and then fits himself to a business in which he does not rattle around.

The man who has more boys than he can supply with work may be justified in moving to the country of cheap lands, but he should be very sure that he is making no mistake at that.

There is money in raising fancy road and saddle horses, provided the farmer is an expert trainer, competent to fit his stock for the show ring. If he is not, he will be wiser to stick to heavy horses and mules.

WHEN TO BREED GILTS.

Too many farmers are in such a hurry to get pigs that they breed their sows months before they are able to stand the strain put upon them. A sow should never be bred under ten months of age and twelve months is better.

By the time she is a year old she will be fully developed, or nearly so, and is then in condition to produce pigs and care for them by providing sufficient milk. But if bred before that age she is immature, and her progeny will suffer in vigor and size—no doubt about this.

A full grown sow of ten or twelve months will produce larger and stronger pigs than one bred before that age. The young sow requires the most careful attention with the best of feed while carrying her first pigs and should be bred the second time before she is two years old. She will have no chance to make growth while suckling her first litter and she must have time to build up her constitution before she is burdened with the strain of a second.

PLACES FOR YOUNG MEN

Stock Raising Presents Good Opportunities in Nearly Every Section of the Country.

(Joseph E. Wing.)

THERE is no such great difference in localities as is commonly supposed. Northern localities have long periods of cold and long feeding seasons, yet they have fertile soils and good crops. Warm and sunny climates have very often severe droughts and scarcity of food. Stock raising is in the long run more profitable where stock must be fed in winter.

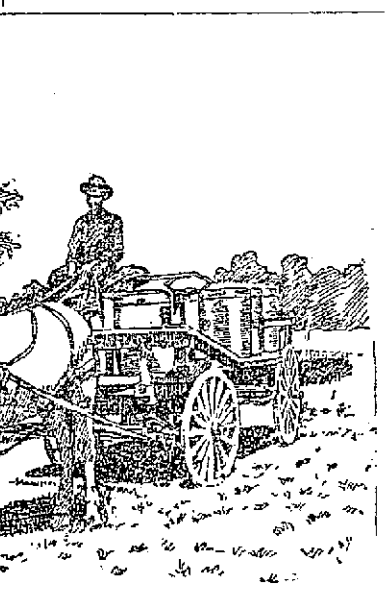

I have abundant faith in one or two things, and should locate here they should be had. First, if in the country not dependent upon irrigation, I would settle where the blue grass and the white clover grow naturally.

I would choose the land that has enough lime in it to harden the well water. I would get near to corn, if possible. Yet some northern localities are good because of the excellence of the grasses and clovers, and because barley, oats and wheat grow well. If possible I would avoid too flat a location.

In going west of the Missouri river I would ask these things: As much rainfall as possible; land adapted to alfalfa; nearness to corn. I would not care especially to grow corn on my own land if I could buy it easily. In settling in the country of short grass I would seek shelter from hills or ravines in winter, water enough to grow alfalfa, and, if possible, nearness to wood and fencing timbers.

In the mountain regions, seek grassy mountain ranges at your back door, water and fertile valley lands and alfalfa fields in winter. I would not be enticed to invest much in any "free range" without an alfalfa field back of it.

Every now and then some young man writes asking me where he can get work on a western cattle or sheep ranch, where he can learn the business and at the same time build up his health. I cannot refer any man to any particular ranch.

It would not be fair to friends in the west to send them men of whom I could know but little. I do not hesitate to say to the delicate young man with as yet no real organic lung trouble that he should cross the Rockies and work at ranching in the great outdoors and sunshine.

I think it safe to say any intelligent young man who will work and not grumble, who will use his common sense and be cheery and helpful, and who will not expect to be waited upon may find work in almost any part of the west, and may "renewed health and vigor of mind and body by a sojourn of a few years there."

Go anywhere there are cattle and sheep, except along the southern border where Mexican vaqueros and shepherds are used, and you will easily find work and better jobs as soon as you have shown yourself competent.

GET OFF THE EARTH.

Too many farmers are in such a hurry to get pigs that they breed their sows months before they are able to stand the strain put upon them. A sow should never be bred under ten months of age and twelve months is better.

By the time she is a year old she will be fully developed, or nearly so, and is then in condition to produce pigs and care for them by providing sufficient milk. But if bred before that age she is immature, and her progeny will suffer in vigor and size—no doubt about this.

A full grown sow of ten or twelve months will produce larger and stronger pigs than one bred before that age. The young sow requires the most careful attention with the best of feed while carrying her first pigs and should be bred the second time before she is two years old. She will have no chance to make growth while suckling her first litter and she must have time to build up her constitution before she is burdened with the strain of a second.

It's a big mistake to plow when the ground shows up slick and oozy, as it leaves the mold board. Too wet, and that means cold and impairs the texture of the soil. We are all too eager to turn the ground over as soon as the spring dries come, but a little patience and good sense will save trouble later and add to the bulk of the crops.

Do not some farmers make the mistake of putting too many cattle on their pastures in the spring. Instead of allowing the grass to get a good, vigorous start?

The best time to buy feeders is not when everybody else is in the market bidding against you. Wait awhile.

Breed always counts in feeders, but very often individually counts more.

The wise feeder will not care much about the ancestry of a steer so long as he possesses the conformation desired.

Cattle have four stomachs, while the pig has but one, and when you stop to think about it you will readily observe that both cannot be fed alike.

ONE LITTLE STRAWBERRY GROWER'S ASSOCIATION.

In the mountain pastures of Scotland during heavy snowstorms flocks of sheep are frequently buried out of sight. They are discovered by sagacious collie dogs and the shepherd proceeds to dig a hole through which they can escape.

Glad to see that farmers are improving their yards and taking down the fences in front of their houses. As no animals are now allowed to roam around the country as they once did, the yard fences are not necessary, and their absence always adds to the beauty of a well-kept yard.

Skim-milk with ground corn and a little bright hay will make calves lumpy.

WHAT IS "TATENT LIME."

A so-called "hydrated" lime, made under processes upon which patents are claimed, is being pushed upon the market under the claim that it is a fertilizer and that, because of its peculiar manufacture, it will produce better results than ordinary lime when applied to the soil. The price asked for this lime is usually about $10 per ton.

A sample of this lime was produced direct from the manufacturers by the Ohio Experiment Station, and used at the rate of a ton to the acre on land that was being prepared for wheat.

At the same time an ordinary building lime, ground into a meal and costing, delivered at Wooster in car lots, $4.50 per ton, was used in the same quantity and on adjoining plots of land, the preparation of the land and the seeding being identical for both kinds of lime. In the spring the whole tract was sown to clover and a good stand was obtained.

The results of this test has been that in every case the limed plots have produced less wheat than those not limed, there being but little difference in the reduction in yield following the kinds of lime. Following are the average yields:

	Bushels per acre.
No fertilizer, no lime (average 2 plots).....	16.31
No fertilizer, hydrated lime (1 plot).....	14.62
400 lbs. Fertilizer, no lime (average 3 plots).....	27.43
400 lbs. fertilizer, hydrated lime (average 2 plots).....	26.73
400 lbs. fertilizer, common lime, (average 2 plots).....	26.68

HOW THE LITTLE BEE PAYS.

Considering the amount invested and the time required to handle them, honey bees are the most profitable things on our little forty acre farm. "Forty acres a farm? How small!" some farmers will say. The acres are few, but owing to the quality of the soil and the crops raised, this little farm gives steady employment to two men and summer work for two and sometimes three more, aside from the manager.

In raising bees I use one and one-half story dovetailed hives with Hoffmann's self-spacing frames. The brood frames are wired and filled with brood comb foundation. This insures a perfectly formed comb and is a great saver of time in getting a colony in shape for a honey flow.

In the upper or top story I use open board sections, plain, with fence separations, and foundation starter nearly the full size of section. These hives have double covers and reversible bottomboards by which the size of the entrance to the hive may be regulated.

The hives cost complete, ready for a colony, about $3 each and will last ten or more years if kept well pointed. I have some I have used that long and they promise good for as many more.

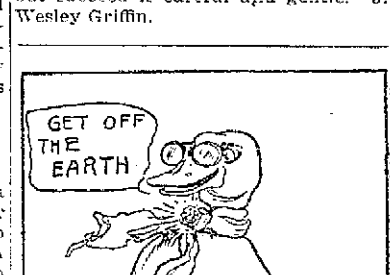

My bees are on the southeast side of a tall board fence which serves as a windbreak.

The entrance to the hives faces the southeast, a very important point in bee keeping, as it gets the little fellows out to work early before the sun evaporates the nectar from the flowers.

I use a bee veil and a Clark's cold blast smoker. A little spurt of smoke will aggravate the bees so I always put gently on the side of the hive an puff in a little amount of smoke at the entrance, then as I carefully raise the top I puff in more smoke. One has to be governed by the degree of anger of the bees as to the amount of smoke to use.

My bees net me on an average $5 per stand each season, some as high as $10.50 in a good season.

At present I have twenty-four colonies, but would advise anyone starting in the business of bee keeping to begin with a few colonies of pure Italian or hybrids and study up on the business. After some experience one cannot help but succeed if careful and gentle.—J. Wesley Griffin.

A handy wagon for hauling milk. The bottom of the body is just high enough to reach the level of the average railroad platform.

By comparing alfalfa, clover, timothy and brome grass for protein content it was found that the alfalfa yielded three times as much protein per acre as clover, nine times as much as timothy, and twelve times the amount obtained from brome grass.

LITTLE NUBBINS OF NEWS.

In Denmark 70,000 farmers live on 30 to 99 acres and 160,000 farmers make a living on smaller farms.

Agricultural laborers in Germany receive from 42 cents to $1 a day and women from 30 cents to 60 cents.

An experiment by a professor in dairying at the New York Experiment Station with a herd of ordinary dairy cows showed that they had consumed in one year $3.50 each and produced 25 of milk. The farmer had lost $2.50 on each cow in his herd in addition to the records kept made a difference the next year. Each cow consumed $28 of feed and produced $38 of milk.

Nebraska farmers complain that a great trust controls the creameries in that state. It is asserted that the trusts fix the price of cream, dictate the territory for each creamery, and when an independent butter factory starts up the trust raises the price of cream and drives it out of business. In addition to this it is claimed that the railroads have given the trust special rates and that the small creamery man stands no show. The trust is reported as making an annual profit of from 100 to 200 per cent. The attorney general has been commissioned to squelch the trust.

Denatured alcohol is now selling at 37 cents per gallon by the barrel and at from 45 to 50 cents at retail. The first consignment under the new law was from the distilleries of Peoria, Ill., and consisted of 8,000 barrels.

The government will establish in Texas a dairy demonstration farm near Danston. The object is to teach farmers the best methods of modern dairying.

HOW TO CURE ALFALFA

Must Be Cut When Coming Into Bloom and Handled With Great Care.

(R. A. Moore, Wisconsin Experiment Station.)

A VERY important factor to observe in alfalfa culture is the proper time and manner in cutting and curing the hay. For best results alfalfa should be cut when coming into blossom. When about one-tenth of the plants are in bloom and the weather fair the mower should be started and the alfalfa cut, leaving the stubble at least one inch in length.

S.S.S. RIDES THE SYSTEM OF MALARIA

We breathe the germs and microbes of Malaria into our lungs and they are soon absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the system. Then we begin to feel "out of sorts," no appetite or energy, dull headaches, a tired, sleepy feeling, and often "dumb chills" and slight fever show that this insidious disease is affecting the entire health. As the trouble progresses and the blood becomes more deeply polluted, boils and abscesses, sores and ulcers or brown blotches appear on the skin. As Malaria is a blood disease, to cure it requires a blood purifier, and S. S. S. is recognized as the best of blood purifiers. S. S. S. destroys the germs with which the blood is loaded and rids the system of Malaria. It goes down into the circulation and attacks the disease in the right way by removing every vestige of the cause and building up the blood from a weak, watery, germ-infected stream to a rich, healthful fluid, nourishing and vitalizing every part of the body by its purity. S. S. S. tones up every part of the system by its fine tonic effects, and being made entirely of healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks it is an absolutely safe remedy for young or old. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

JIMMY GARDINER WILL BEGIN TRAINING AT ONCE

Crack Welter to Arrive in Fort Wayne Today—Big Card July 19.

Jimmy Gardiner, the welterweight who is to meet Clarence English in a ten-round go at Princess rink under the auspices of the Summit City Athletic club next Friday night, will arrive in the city today to begin his training. Gardiner is always ready for business and will be obliged to do no more than to put on the trunks, though he is a competent and thorough trainer for all his work. Training quarters have been fitted up in the rink and the public will be permitted to see the Lewis lay at his work at all times during next week. English, who has been busy with matches lately, is also reported in fine condition and will not have much to do to put himself in prime condition for his battle with the hardest man he has ever been sent to against.

The Gardiner-English match is attracting lively attention all over the country. Gardiner is the acknowledged premier of the steadily better class and English has shown championship stuff in all his fights. Neither has ever taken a knock-out walk. This is expected to be one of the most interesting and gassy matches made anywhere lately. English is expected to come out early in the week. "Kid" Wilson, of Baltimore, who goes against Freddy Dillon, of Cleveland, in the semi-windup, has declined his demure to going on as a secondary attraction and will deliver the best he has, and it will be the most interesting and gassy match of the season. The personnel of the club has been greatly changed since it was here early in the season.

The owners realized that in order to take a position with the other clubs they needed strength and they dug down into the bank accounts and bought it. Yesterday the club arranged to have a fall out of "Shorty" Jessup's Richmond club, who has been growing fat on work and he will take up at Vince Robbins who will be in the points for the locals.

WIDOW IS CLEARED BY LETTER.

Suspected After Husband's Death Until Suicide is Shown.

Galveston, Ill., July 12.—Although Mrs. Herman Ritter, aged 29, was quizzed by the police following the death by poison of her husband, a business man in the county attorney of Madison county, Illinois, she was vindicated completely by a letter which was found yesterday. It was written by Ritter to the coroner. Ritter said in the letter that he feared mental collapse soon and that if he lived an asylum would be his home. To avoid being a public charge, suicide, he said, was his only resort. Mrs. Ritter now confirms this and has no letter written in a similar vein. Ritter died June 29. He was formerly an undertaker at Edwardsville, Ill., and in letter directed the style of coffin to be used.

E. H. MERRITT IS NEW COMMERCIAL CLUB PRESIDENT

Work of Past Year is Reviewed and Future Activity is Planned.

In annual meeting Thursday evening the Fort Wayne Commercial club elected officers for the new year, reviewed the work of the past twelve months and discussed plans for future activity in the movement for a greater Fort Wayne. The assemblage was marked by enthusiastic interest and pronounced helpfulness, and the session of the directors for election of officers resulted as follows:

President—E. H. Merritt.
First Vice President—O. N. Heaton.
Second Vice President—F. J. Thelma.

Secretary—R. B. Hanna.
Treasurer—C. E. Bonar.
The ten members of the board of directors elected included four from the "regular" ticket, as follows: B. Paul Mossman, E. H. Merritt, J. M. Landenberg, C. H. Worden, Jesse L. Scott, C. B. Fitch, O. N. Heaton, A. E. Carroll, O. N. Guldin and Louis F. Curdes. Two vacancies on the hold-over section of the board, occasioned by the resignation of Joseph R. Sullivan and C. H. Windt, both of whom have removed from the city, were filled by the election of W. F. Graeter and F. L. Smock, the other eight hold-overs being C. W. Orr, C. E. Bond, Henry Beadell, S. M. Foster, F. V. Culbertson, P. A. Randall, H. C. Rockhill and W. C. Rastetter.

Membership and Finance.
The report of Secretary Hanna and Treasurer Bonar showed that with a balance of $1,379.31 at the beginning of the year, receipts had been sufficient to meet expenditures and increase the treasury balance to $2,314.43. Both reports were referred to the auditing committee.

Chairman E. H. Merritt submitted the report of the membership committee.

At the beginning of the year the club had 350 members. Since then fifty-six new and four re-admitted members have been added. A loss was occasioned by the death of three members, the suspension of eight for non-payment of dues and the resignation of twenty-eight, leaving the present total membership 471.

In his report C. W. Orr, chairman of the press and printing committee, expressed the committee's appreciation of the assistance rendered by the newspapers during the past year, and suggested that when the club was financially able to do so an advertising agent be appointed to assist in the work of the publicity department.

From Other Committees.
Charles McCulloch, reporting as chairman of the committee on city interests, told of the work on the new hotel project, and stated that but $15,000 is yet lacking of the $200,000 in stock which the committee started out to get. He expressed the belief that this would be subscribed very soon, but he deplored the fact that a number of persons who should be vitally interested in the new hotel by reason of their realty holdings have given the committee little or no encouragement.

F. V. Culbertson, from the committee on manufactures, said that during the year the committee had placed the Wallace-Lindsmith Hoisting Machinery company and the Economy Motor Buggy company as tenants in the vacant Commercial Improvement company building. He also said that the committee has under consideration a proposition from Chicago for the location of a large creamery concern here. Mr. Culbertson urged the club to adopt some plan by which immediate propositions can be made to manufacturing concerns desiring to locate in Fort Wayne. In this suggestion he was warmly supported by President Mossman and others.

Another Institution Needed.
Expressing pleasure that the new hotel project was so well advanced, J. B. Harper suggested as another very pressing need of the city a new and modern office building. He declared his belief that every office would be taken before the structure were fairly under way. His experience as a member of the hotel solic-

Notice to Our Patrons:

We wish to announce that we have returned after spending a vacation of 2 hours at Swinney park and are again ready to do your work at prices that will astonish you. Let us explain how we can do this: You see we are employed by one of the big leading electrical factories during the day, when we are through work we buy a bunch of material from the managers and after supper put in the work; they let us have the material and take it out of our wages, "see the point." And when it comes to chandeliers and fixtures, that's where we shine. You see we buy them from the great Mail Order House of Smear, Rubintin & Co., of Chicago, then we have a friend who is a Deductor on one of the big railroads running to Chicago, he brings the goods with him on his return trip, so you see we have no freight charges to pay, of course this is beating the Railroad Co., but they don't mind a little matter like that.

Now that we have explained to you our advantages over people engaged in the business in a legitimate way we believe it will be to your advantage to call on us when in need of anything in our line.

ing committee moved O. N. Guldin to observe that in all probability the office building would have to be built by outside men of nerve, and Mr. Mossman said the success of the hotel project, after so many ineffectual attempts, had so stirred the interest that he believed an office building would follow the hotel in quick order. In the course of his remarks, President Mossman reviewed somewhat the work of the club during the past year, citing its effort for an adjustment of the gas question, for elevated tracks and for the new hotel. He said that while the organization had not directly accomplished a great many things, it had been helpful indirectly in many ways and he hoped for still better things in the year to come. He urged especially that the people of the city be more public-spirited. "I think sometimes," said Mr. Mossman, "that our great trouble is that we will not put money into anything unless we can see direct returns from the investment."

Monroe W. Fitch, speaking of the need of a modern office building, said that he agreed with everything Mr. Harper had stated. "I know full well," said Mr. Fitch, "that every foot of floor space could be rented before the building could be completed, for I have canvassed the project enough to verify this statement. We will build the office building when we get the hotel built or under way—but we must build the hotel now."

There will be no session of the club in August, and the next meeting will be held September 12, when the new president will be inducted into office.

BOSTON REAL ESTATE VALUES.

An Offer of a Million Dollars for a Site Once Valued at $20,000.

An offer of a million dollars was made to the trustees of the Massachusetts general hospital a few days ago for a piece of property lying in the center of the city.

It concerned a block of buildings in Province court and the street of the same name and at the time that the hospital came into possession of it through gift it was valued at $20,000. Of all the shifts in valuation of property in Boston this particular piece is considered the most remarkable.

It is the site of the old Province house which was the home of the governors of Massachusetts from the days of Governor Shute, in 1716, to the morning of Evacuation day, March 17, 1776, when Sir William Howe found it most convenient to leave the town as quickly as possible in order to escape the bullets of the revolutionists.

In the year of 1816 there could not be found a purchaser who would pay the upset price of 70,000 that was asked for the property then. The most remarkable feature of the situation today as regards the property is that it is being leased for a $750 a year rental, while if the 99-year lease had been based on a valuation of 1 million dollars at 1 per cent it should be bringing in income of $10,000 a year.

A syndicate of wealthy men of Boston are ready to erect one of the most costly hotels of the city, if the site can be secured, and it was because of their offer of a million for the site and buildings thereon that the story of the old building came out.

The property is being held by the Massachusetts hospital under a grant from the state and is leased for a term of ninety-nine years, to expire in 1915, to the Greenough estate.

Day's Happenings in the Industrial World

MANY ELKS MOVING.

All East-bound Trains Carry Members of Fraternity Nowadays.

For the balance of this week there will be a big movement east-bound of members of the Elks, going to attend the annual convention over the Pennsylvania, the Nickel Plate and the Wabash lines. The movement will be particularly heavy on the Pennsylvania. Tonight there will be a special train of twelve Pullman cars over that line carrying the California and the Nevada delegations, and tomorrow night the Milwaukee delegation will pass through on a special train which will run as the second section of No. 8. Every through train today, tomorrow and Sunday will have extra cars for the accommodation of the Elks. The Fort Wayne delegation will leave in a special car tomorrow night, and arrangements may be made by which this car will be attached to the special carrying the Milwaukee delegation.

MAKE EXHIBITION OF WORK.

The volunteer fire department of the Fort Wayne Electric works had their weekly drill at 11 o'clock today, instead of tomorrow, in order that several General Electric officials who are here might witness the drill and judge of the proficiency of the department. In two minutes after the alarm the men had two streams of water flowing out of the nozzles.

WABASH OFFICIALS GO EAST.

Motive Power Supt. J. B. Barnes and Mechanical Engineer G. E. Coutant, of the Wabash, passed through the city last evening, en route to New York, on business for the company. Before they return they will inspect some locomotives that are being built at the Baldwin Locomotive works for the Wabash company.

LOST A VALUABLE HORSE.

Ben Waddington lost a valuable horse this morning as the result of an attack of colic. He purchased the horse last Saturday and up to last night worked it every day since. Mr. Waddington is engaged in hauling locomotive repair material between the Pennsylvania shops and the round house.

SHIPPING ENGINE TODAY.

A 30x42 cylinder Corliss engine, built at the Bass works for the Republic Iron and Steel company, Youngstown, O., is finished and is being loaded on cars at the works today. Machinists will go to Youngstown in a few days to superintend the installation of the engine.

RELAYING NICKEL PLATE TRACKS.

The work of renewing the Nickel Plate tracks with a heavier steel rail has reached New Haven and a gang of eighteen are at work there today. They are all Americans and they sleep and eat in cars fitted up for that purpose.

HAD A FINGER CRUSHED.

P. J. Leazler, a truckbuilder at the Pennsylvania tank shop, had the index finger of his left hand crushed this morning while at his work. The end of the digit was badly crushed.

LEFT HAND BRUISED.

A. E. Krouse, a machinist's helper at the Wabash shops, slipped and fell this morning and severely sprained and bruised his left hand. Dr. Kaadt was called to attend the sufferer.

BRAND NEW SCHEME TO PUT CURB ON THE RAILROADS

Plan to Make Government an Owner of Stock in Property.

Chicago, July 12.—The Tribune today prints the following dispatch from Washington:

An entirely new and extremely radical proposition for control of the railroads has been advanced for the consideration of President Roosevelt. It involves partial government ownership of transportation lines by actual purchase of stock.

The suggestion has been made in a semi-official way, but whether President Roosevelt would adopt the scheme, which is so nearly socialistic in its development, may well be doubted. It has been stated, however, that he is actually considering such a recommendation, and that it is part of the proposition to bring the railroads to time by securing receivers for them.

The two schemes fit into each other perfectly. It would be practically impossible for the government to secure the appointment of receivers or to control in any way receivers after they were appointed unless it had a monetary interest in the railroad. If it owned stock, no matter how small an amount, it would have a standing in court, the same as the largest creditor of the road.

Would Mean Ownership in End. The idea of purchasing stock is a practical one, but it is undeniably government ownership on a small scale, and inevitably would result in actual ownership in the long run. The theory of those who have advanced this scheme for the consideration of President Roosevelt is that by a comparatively small investment in the stock there might be a small measure of government ownership, but without any government control, so far as the running of the road is concerned.

It is not believed here that President Roosevelt will give the new scheme favorable consideration. He has declared himself against government ownership, by which he meant ownership outright, of railroads. He suggested that this was socialistic in its tendency.

It is easy to see that by the purchase of stock in a railroad the government would be in a position to secure much better control than is now possible. In the first place, as previously stated, a stockholder has a right to appeal to the courts for redress at any time he considers his interests are jeopardized. The small stockholder in this way indirectly is given some of the control of the railroad, although, of course, he has nothing to do with its actual operation.

Bulwark for Receivership Idea. The plan officially given out through the department of justice the other day for the appointment of receivers was fatally defective, because the government in no case would be financially interested and would have only a precarious standing in court. The proposition to buy stock is so necessary to the scheme for the appointment of receivers that it is almost evident President Roosevelt cannot endorse one in his next annual message without taking them together.

It has been suggested that in certain cases the government might purchase its purchase of stock in a point where it would have enough to entitle it to at least one member of the board of directors. With a government director sitting in the managing body of a great railroad it would be less easy for the controlling element in the road to resort to secret means of financing or operation.

The government would be in position to secure all necessary information as to traffic arrangements, stock operations and consolidation with other railroads.

Employees' Machine One Peril.

There are a great many people who make a strong distinction between these two things. They have no objection to a municipality or the government owning railroads or street car systems, provided the actual operations are entrusted to private hands. One of the strongest objections to

GROWING CHILDREN.

The Period When the Nervous Activity is at its Greatest.

A medical journal says: "Against the practice of giving tea and coffee to children, we cannot speak too strongly."

Childhood is the period when the nervous activity is at its greatest. The brain is ever busy receiving new impressions.

Reflex action, co-ordination of muscles, and the special senses are all under a special course of training. The nervous system is pushed to its utmost capacity and long is the list of victims that follow its overstimulation. In these little people, nothing but harm can come from the use of such articles as tea or coffee.

Bad, then, as this practice is, let us as physicians be as vigorous in its prohibition. Do not be satisfied by answering "No," when asked as to its use, but let us teach the families with whom we come in contact, that such practice is evil. We speak emphatically, because not only among the poor and uneducated, but among the rich, who should know better, this practice is marvellously prevalent.

A man who tried Postum Food Coffee, said that it might be solid nourishment, but he didn't like its taste. He had not discovered the secret of making delicious Postum. After boiling commences, allow it to boil full 15 minutes. Not simply to put it on the stove for 15 minutes, but count the fifteen minutes after boiling commences. That brings out the food value and the delicious flavor. It certainly does make the children bright and healthy, and has proven a Godsend to many an adult whose daily life were not understood until Postum was used in place of Coffee. "There's a Reason." Postum properly made has a coffee taste similar to the mild, high grade Javas. Read the little health classic, "The Road to Wellville," in pages.

government ownership has always been the manifest danger of creating enormous political machines, the employees in turn, on account of their political strength, practically dictating the terms of their own employment.

The suggestion has been made, therefore, that President Roosevelt might not object to government ownership to almost any extent, provided it did not involve government operation, but merely closer supervision than that which now can be exercised by the interstate commerce commission. The new scheme is socialistic, but even among those here who have received it with something in the nature of a shudder it is admitted that it would in the end put the government in the position of being able to dictate the general management of the railroads of the country.

The same scheme might be applied to big interstate corporations. To purchase even enough stock to secure the election of a director in half a dozen different railroads involves the expenditure of an enormous sum of money, and Congress would have to appropriate millions upon millions, although in some cases the government would receive its dividends the same as any other stockholder, provided the railroad was properly managed.

Roosevelt's Sanction Not Likely. There are those who remember, however, an unfortunate experience of the federal government in connection with the Pacific railroads. They were given enormous land grants and bond issues guaranteed by the government, and in return for this the United States always had a member on the board of directors on these roads. It is not now remembered that this government's representation had any tangible effect in the way of reducing rates or keeping the railroads from violating the law in any way they saw fit.

It is evident that the government cannot control a railroad until it owns a controlling interest any more than an individual can do it. When it owns a controlling interest, there is complete government ownership, and it seems impossible to work out any theory by which a controlling interest in a railroad would turn over its operation to the minority interest.

The result seems to be that the purchase of a small amount of stock would necessarily be followed by the buying of more and more, until first government ownership and then government operation would become indispensable to the protection of the enormous investment made by the government.

eighty and they are as follows:

Fisher C. West, eighty years; Fisher
West, Jr., three years, and Donner
West, two years, sons of Mr. and Mrs.
Price West, of Auburn; Samuel A.
Brown, thirty-one years; Henry Albert
Greenfield, twenty-seven years; Manilla May Nelson, eight years; Edwin Eugene Strook, eleven years; Ruth
Malinda Kubas, twelve years.

After the baptismal ceremony four
